

NOTES FROM THE OFFICE

March 29, 2023

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

"Spectacular" is a word to describe the performance of our students!

The 40+ students, our Parent Assistants, Jenn Kupfer and Family, Ms. Perrault and Mr. Mason put their hearts and souls into the show- and it was evident.

Thank You to the stage crew, to JPII, and a special Thank You to Lori Johnson for her contributions, for sharing her artistic talents with the SPXS community, and for her many efforts in 16 different shows through the years at our school!

MAP TESTING

Please note that the next round of MAP Testing is May 8-26. While I don't want to stress the students out, we need a different approach to the tests, in order to get valid results. Avoid vacations during this period, and we will try and slow some students down, and encourage them to do their best- not to be the first done!

STAFF

Mrs. Petrie will be out for several weeks, as she will be having surgery. Please pray for her speedy recovery, and her return to mobility!

UPCOMING!

Dangers of Social Media at 6:00 pm. Tuesday, April 4

Social media can provide a challenging landscape for students, even younger and younger students are exposed.

There was a concern this week with Gr. 4 students!

If your child has a phone, games online, or frequently uses a tablet or a personal device- this session is for you!

This session is especially recommended for any current Middle School or rising Middle School parents!

Register for this event through this Google Form

REMINDER

Reminders are helpful this time of year! Below I have included the chain of communication outline that comes directly from the Handbook. To best serve the needs of your child follow the guidelines below if there is a concern or question. These guidelines will help direct you to the “expert” for each situation- the individual immediately connected to the concern or question, and will facilitate the quickest resolution of a concern.

In most situations, the first person to contact is the classroom teacher.

A child’s teacher is the initial point of contact for most school questions. A student or parent/guardian should reach out to the class teacher with a question or concern around:

- student progress
- grade level or subject area curriculum
- classroom practices or expectations
- homework, student assessment
- student discipline
- social situations between students
- recess concern
- a family concern that might impact the students
- other matters related to the specific classroom and interactions among the group of students

A child’s coach or the person overseeing an after-school activity should be the initial point of contact when a student or parent/guardian has a question or concern about specific issues such as:

- participation
- team rules
- schedule conflicts or other matters related directly to the sport, team, or activity.

If parents have athletic questions or concerns that cannot be answered by a coach, the campus Athletic Coordinator would be the next point of contact, followed by the school principal.

The guidance counselor and/or nurse is the initial point of contact for:

- immediate social, emotional, and/or behavioral concerns around a student that come from outside the classroom.
- The guidance counselor will, in many instances, be a secondary point of contact for student concerns that have been identified to the classroom teacher.
- The nurse is the initial point of contact for health concerns. The classroom teacher should also be contacted. Other follow-up contacts (for example the Middle School teachers) may be necessary.

The school principal is the appropriate point of contact when a question or concern exists relative to:
school rules or regulations
other matters related to school-wide activities or organization.
any building-specific issues.

Also, follow-up contact with the principal would be made if parental concerns that have been directed to the classroom teacher, guidance counselor, coach, or athletic director have not been addressed.

Contact the school office when you have a question related to anything listed below if it cannot be answered by the website, handbook, monthly calendar, or weekly notes.

any changes to schedule, school day clarification related to procedures, etc.
